History	Year group	Summer 1
William Turner and life in Tudor Morpeth	3	6 sessions

Background knowledge

William Turner was born in Morpeth in 1508 and lived here during the Tudor period. He produced the book 'Herbal' which described plants and their medicinal uses. The book was written in English as opposed to Latin which was the usual language for books. This ensured that the book reached a much larger audience.

In this unit of work the children will learn about the life of William Turner, the medicinal uses of plants, food, childhood and disease in the Tudor times. They will look at how Morpeth has changed over the centuries from Tudor time to present day.

Resources

William Turner information booklet from the local history group.
Ipads for code hunting activity

What should I already know?

I can begin to describe similarities and differences in artefacts. I can find answers to simple questions about the past from sources of information and begin to discuss the effectiveness of a source.

I can sequence events and objects into chronological order.

I can begin to identify different ways to represent the past e.g. photographs, stories, adults talking about the past.

I can place time studied on a timeline

I am beginning to identify and give reasons for different ways that the past is represented.

I can discuss sources of information and question whether a source of information is always true and reliable.

I am developing my understanding of historical concepts such as continuity and change, similarity and difference, and significance.

Cultural Capital

Carlilse Park - Children may have the opportunity to visit the William Turner garden in the local park. They can see an aerial map of the park on digimaps for schools.

Ipad activity - all children will engage with the code hunting activity and have access to an Ipad to enhance their learning.

Forest School - an abundance of learning opportunities that are related to this topic (this will be updated with actual activities soon) which will give the children the opportunity to think like, act like and speak like someone with experience of the Tudor era.

Relating the work to Morpeth will enable the children to engage more with the unit of work and make it relevant to their own lives . They will develop a passion for history and an enthusiastic engagement in learning, which develops their sense of curiosity about the past and the past of Morpeth.

Outcomes

An overview of what children will know / can do

Developing:

- talk about the life of William Turner and say why his book, 'Herbal' appealed to many ordinary people and say how he is remembered in Morpeth
